

Sky Charles Curtis Memorial Theatre Scholarship First Colonial High School

Purpose:

This scholarship is offered in memory of Sky Curtis, a member of the Patriot Playhouse and International Thespian Troupe 3178 from his birth until his death on January 22, 2021. Members of International Thespian Society Troupe 3178 who have experience in both acting and technical work and who are pursuing training in theatre either at a college or university or a trade-specific training program.

History:

Above all, Sky was a great friend. He was known for his totally embracing hugs. He supported those around him through hard times and celebrated during the good times. He and his “band of brothers” (Martin Lawrence, Thomas McCuen, John Bowhers, Adam Taylor and Noah Kaplan) maintained their friendship through high school and into adulthood. Several members of this band are actively involved in the selection and distribution process of this scholarship out of their appreciation for Sky.

Sky, like his father, was an actor and a technician. He was never afraid to tackle a production detail. From lighting to construction, he loved solving the problems that come with every process. He was never afraid to work hard or get his hands dirty, and productions and theaters all over the 757 have benefitted from his touch over the years.

In addition to a strong grasp of technical theatre, Sky could also be found on stage, engaging audiences. Sky’s first role was at 6 months old as a carry-on Baby Kamzoil in the VBCPS All-City production of Fiddler on the Roof. He took his first step downstage on the stage at LTVB. From Paddington Bear to a funny British Froggy in The Foreigner, he loved being on stage. Sky, like his mother, loved the exploration of ideas and language. He loved hearing and telling stories and arguing points for the sake of argument and enjoyed absorbing as much knowledge about everything as possible.

The first annual Sky Curtis Memorial Scholarship was awarded on Sunday, May 22, 2022, during the closing performance of Guys and Dolls, Sky’s mother’s final mainstage at the Patriot Playhouse and has since been announced at the closing of each final show of the season.
